A hand-drawn scroll with a thick black outline, tilted diagonally. The scroll has a rolled-up top-left corner and a small tab at the bottom. The text is written in a simple, bold, sans-serif font.

THE RACE

Team unity is the single element that allows our team to achieve great success off the playing field as well as on it. When the race is over and the pressures of competition abate, we turn our efforts to a different calendar of events.

OUR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITOR

84

Eeva Korhonen arrived from Helsinki, Finland in August to spend a year living "the American way." She came with the Youth for Understanding (YFU) Organization, which allows 500 Finnish students to come to America each year. Eeva made many friends in school, especially through her participation in field hockey, indoor track, tennis, and chorus. Although she misses her family and friends, she says the people here have made it easier for her to feel at home. Eeva will miss her new friends in Windsor Locks, but, when she leaves in July, she will take many happy memories with her.

Eeva, it is hard to say goodbye.
We will surely miss you.

Moi!
Class of '84

"Each friend represents a world in us, a world possibly not born until they arrive, and it is only by this meeting that a new world is born."

Nin

During the 1972 Winter Games, John Curry won the gold for great Britain in Men's Figure Skating.

THE GAMES

The concentration, the tension, the excitement, and even the agony all play essential roles in every aspect of the Games. It is during the actual competition, however, that we must strive the hardest to establish a standard of excellence. Once the Games have been concluded, we can indulge ourselves and reflect upon our ultimate achievements. It is only by this reflection that we realize that our true victories were not in the winning but in the discovery of the best within each of us.

We finally acknowledge our courage as a form of solidarity which will never be weakened or destroyed. We will always salute the spirit of the 1984 Olympic athletes. They not only displayed grandeur and excellence but also set the pace for tomorrow's champions.
